

List of HVAC System Optimization Service Providers

General:

It is in the customer's best interest to evaluate the following items, as a minimum, when choosing a service provider:

- Experience with HVAC system optimization work (including troubleshooting of HVAC and control systems)
- References (history of past projects)
- Responsiveness
- Reporting and communication skills
- Sample reports or studies of past projects
- Metering and monitoring techniques
- Air and water system testing and balancing

In most cases, the services of a professional engineer should be retained for preparing studies and performing design work. If a provider lacks experience or skill in a certain area, he should be asked to partner with a firm that can provide the needed expertise.
